ADMISSION: General attendance to the farmers' market is free. Concerts and special events are subject to admission fees.

ATTENDANCE: Saturday attendance has steadily grown from 10,000 on an average Saturday in 2005 to 13,474 in 2008. Average Sunday attendance has grown from 2,900 in 2005 to 3,500 in 2008. (Numbers based on customer counts from May to October.) Total 2008 attendance is estimated at over 690,000.

HISTORY: As Kansas City's oldest continuously-operating business, the City Market has served as an entrepreneurial hub since its inception in 1857. Leased by the City to Jacob and Fred Scheibel for $50 a year, the Market area quickly became a bustling trading post for those heading west. The Roaring '20s brought unprecedented growth to the Market, housing City Hall, two newspapers, an opera house and the county courthouse. Current City Market buildings were raised in the 1930's and the City Market expanded beyond produce in the '70s and 80's to include bars, restaurants and other businesses.

WHERE TO EAT: The City Market is home to an eclectic assortment of restaurants and cafes, to tempt any palette from the traditional to the adventurous. Venture out for a crispy falafel or a handy Shawarma sandwich for a fast and friendly lunch at Habashi House Middle Eastern Café or perhaps a flavorful stew, richly seasoned at the Blue Nile. Try one of nearly 100 different Vietnamese entrees at Hien Vuong or Indian and Pakistani cuisine at Tikka House. If something more traditional suits your interests, the dry rubbed, slow cooked meats at Winslow's City Market Barbeque, a gourmet pizza at Minsky's Pizza Café, or a grilled Panini at City Market Coffee Shop. Sample a tasty sandwich or beautifully tossed salad at Succotash. Bo Lings Chinese Restaurant features a wide range of Mandarin and Cantonese cuisine as well as one of the largest Dim Sum menus in the metro area. City Market's newest restaurant, Burrito Bros. offers fresh and flavorful Mexican burritos, quesadillas, salads, tacos and more. To end a meal on a sweet note, see what the latest bubble drink craze is all about at Lolicup Tea.
